EQAR staff and committee members are staying at Hotel Catalonia (Avenida de Madrid 10) or at Hotel Macià Condor (Avenida Constitución, 6)

3. Public Transport

Granada can be reached in different ways:

- Fly directly to Granada Airport (small airport), most often via Madrid. Once you arrive at the airport there are buses (ALSA) that can take you to the Granada bus station. From there you can take bus 33 that will take you to the city center (direction: Cenes de Vega). For Hotel Catalonia, exit at Constitución 4V.
- Fly to Málaga airport, followed by either a direct bus from Málaga airport to Granada bus-station (see above on how to get from the bus station to the city center), or if the bus times are not convenient, via an (indirect) train connection. The train from Málaga María Zambrano Train Station to Granada takes between 1 hour 20 and 2 hours (depending on the kind of train). There is a train from Málaga airport to the Málaga María Zambrano Train Station which takes 12 minutes.
- Fly to Madrid and then take a train to Granada. Please take note of the following:
 - There are around 3 trains per day
 - There is no train station at the Madrid airport, so you will have to go to Atocha first (40 minutes).

Granada has many bus lines. Tickets can be bought in the bus (cash only – small change) and sometimes at the ticket vending machines at the bus stop.

The Granada Train station is very close to the meeting venue and also not far from the hotels.
